the world in letters and art. The company was worthy of the occasion, which was designed as a tribute of respect to Ole Bull, the great Norwegian violinist.

" Though Ole Bull was the centre of attraction, the great vocalists, the Swedish Lady Quartette, were received with rapturous applause, and sang with the case, delicacy and effect which are now expected of them. They have become great Boston favorites."

ONE OF THE VIOTIMS.—One of Mack's ONE OF THE VICTIMS.—One of Mack's performers finds himself on the town without money. Yesterday he went up to the City Prison to interview the late manager of the Theatre Comique, but that dignitury was reported as indulging in a matinee siesta and none dared to molest him. The discomfitted player then turned himself into a syndicate and endeavored to negotiate a loan of $2 from the Mayor, but His Honor consulted his watch and observed that market morning was approaching. Like the celebrated John Rodgers (not the insurance man) he had nine small children at home and just enough coupons to go round.

STEAM WHISTLING.—Steam whistles, the roar of which might be taken as the indices of an earthquake, have lost the charm of novelty. People are startled, horses run away and invalids are pain-fully affected. In fact there is no use in raising heaven and earth in order to notify some lagging passenger that a boat is about ready to start out. The packets, like the seasons, have their ap-pointed times, and if passengers don't know it they ought to learn it by being left behind a time or two. Let us have
